

His Forever

From: "BancorpSouth Consumer support" <ebanking@bxs.com>
To: "peggym" <peggym@his-forever.com>
Sent: Wednesday, July 04, 2007 2:12 AM
Subject: BancorpSouth notification mail

BancorpSouth

Dear Client,

Our company continuously keeps abreast of the recent achievements in the field of network piracy control and takes appropriate preventive measures for providing maximum protection of our clients from encroachment of swindlers.

Since tomorrow, the system of access to operating fields of our clients will be transferred to a system of coding with a floating number. It means that your password and ID will not change. However, they will be registered in the system differentially. The only prerequisite consists in the following: you have to register the first source key in the system and it will generate further re-encoding. In order to fulfill it, just follow the link <https://www.bxs.com/login.asp> and enter your access code and ID in the appropriate fields.

Please, pay attention to the fact, that all fields must be completed, otherwise the system will block transition to the next level, and you will not be able to work with your personal data.

If all necessary fields are completed and your password and ID concur with those registered in the system, you will get access to the operating field. After that your personal identification key will be successfully registered in the system. No other efforts from your side are necessary.

If for any reason you have not succeed in getting access to the system, please, double check validity of data entered. Should all the data be valid but access is still forbidden, please contact our technical support department.

Thanks for understanding and support.
IT Security Department